Call for Papers – PVC AUS 2020

PVC AUS 2020 is taking place between 26-28 May 2020 at the Hilton, Surfers Paradise, Queensland. It will gather leaders in the PVC value chain from Australia, New Zealand and the Asia Pacific region to share industry trends and developments specific to the manufacturing, use and re-use of vinyl in this region.

Organised by the Vinyl Council of Australia, the conference will feature technical and case study presentations focused on opportunities for regional collaboration and initiatives to drive innovation and PVC solutions to reach a shared horizon: a sustainable, resilient society and circular economy.

It will provide participants with valuable insights on emerging challenges and directions for the regional markets.

Our speakers can expect to:

- Connect with business leaders in the fast-growing Asia Pacific PVC industry
- Influence industry development
- Learn about emerging technologies and product innovation in this region.

Presenting a paper:

Be part of this event by presenting a paper. Abstracts for presentations are now being accepted for the following conference themes:

- New products, materials and additives
- Manufacturing technology and technical advances
- Market trends and opportunities for industry
- Demonstrating sustainability and responsible manufacturing & supply chains
- Case studies on Best Practice PVC and product stewardship
- The circular economy for PVC
- Regulatory developments shaping the industry

Presentations may take the form of papers with one or more speakers, panel discussions, or other formats. Papers must be original, featuring new or updated work that has not been presented (or scheduled for presentation) elsewhere.

Share things you have seen and done, lessons you have learned, problems you have solved in a way you can engage the audience and foster discussion. If you have an idea for who you would like to see participate in an interesting panel session, let us know!
